Nonprofit Speech Rights
July 2006

The Internal Revenue Service's new approach to enforcing the ban on partisan activities by charities and religious organizations has raised serious questions about the agency's interpretation of the law, about evenhanded enforcement, and about the appropriateness of an approach aimed at deterring speech.

Kay Guinane, director of Nonprofit Speech Rights, directed the research, writing, and production of this project. She was assisted by Jennifer Lowe-Davis. Anna Oman designed the report.
